ENGLAND NOW IN FERMENT OVER ARMY

Resignations of Army Officers in Home-Rule Agitation Sole Topic of Public

ASQUITH ENDEAVORS TO PLACATE EACH FACTION

King and War Lords Consulting Hourly in Endeavor to Clear the Situation

LONDON, March 23.—The threatened disruption of the British army, as the result of the wholesale resignation of officers who have refused to fight for Home Rule, is overshadowing every other topic in England today. That there is real danger, nobody questions. It came as a surprise to the government. Trouble in Ulster has been considered likely, but that the troops would prove refractory entered into no one's calculation. The Liberal newspapers have denounced the recalcitrant officers in unmeasured terms. Resignation is one thing, they said, but a conspiracy of resignations to defeat the ends of government is quite another thing. Some called it treason.

The King again held conferences today with War Minister Seely and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill. He cancelled several engagements, and kept in constant touch with the cabinet. Liberal politicians resented King George's appearance of anxiety, declaring the attitude of the King is encouraging the Ulstermen.

Sunday Conferences
The gravity of the Irish situation was emphasized Sunday by a series of conferences in London between the ministers themselves and between the ministers and the King. It is many years since such conferences have been held on Sunday. Among the visitors to Secretary of War Seely, after he had been closeted with the King, were Field Marshal Sir J. D. P. French, chief of the imperial general staff; Viscount Escher, president of the territorial force association, and colonels of regiments whose officers have resigned.

War Preparations
BELFAST, March 23.—Though outward quiet prevailed, real war preparations are going on at a great rate. The government's disposition of troops is pretty well completed, but the government is hampered by lack of officers, many having resigned rather than fight for home rule. The loyalty of whole regiments, too, is doubtful. The opponents of home rule are boldly carrying out their preparations for a fight, making distribution of drab uniforms to four thousand men for a special service corps. Automobile transportation is reported ready to move two thousand men to any point within three hours from Belfast. Many officers of the Royal Irish Constabulary, which the government has counted on, are said to be ready to resign. The disorganization of this body will be a severe blow to the government.

ASQUITH ATTEMPTS TO PLACE ANTI-HOME RULERS
LONDON, March 23.—Premier Asquith published a statement in the Times today declaring that the cabinet's view is that there has been an honest misunderstanding concerning the nature of the duties the army officers have been asked to perform in Ulster and that the intention is to reinstate those who resigned and attribute the whole business to a blunder. It is generally inferred that General Arthur Paget, in charge of the troops in Ireland, will be made the scapegoat. Lloyd George was jeered by the crowd when he arrived at the parliament house.

MME. CAILLAUX IS CAUSE OF MUTINY IN PARIS PRISON

PARIS, March 23.—Because of favoritism shown to Madame Caillaux, who assassinated Editor Gaston Calmette of the Figaro, it was rumored today that 800 prisoners at St. Lazare jail have mutinied. The prison officials declined to discuss the report. Madame Caillaux is being treated with consideration, giving a strong suggestion that her husband continues to wield enormous power. She has a special suite of rooms and is denied no luxuries. She treats the jail attendants as servants rather than as her custodians.

CLEVELAND, March 23.—The city's department of finance today received bids for $1,197,000 worth of street improvement bonds. On April 13, $800,000 worth of municipal electric light bonds will be knocked down to the highest bidder.

ALL-STEEL TRAIN IS WRECKED IN EAST

Bolts and Spikes Drawn from Fishplates and Ties by Alleged Wreckers

CHICAGO, March 23.—Two men were injured Saturday night when the north-bound Olympian, an all-steel transcontinental train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, was derailed three miles from the Union depot. The engine turned completely over. Peter Haddock, the engineer, was scalded, and A. J. Stolz, the fireman, was painfully bruised. Each lives in Milwaukee.

The baggage car turned on its side and two passenger coaches left the rails. The train was delayed about three hours.

Charles Costello, general train master, asserted after an investigation, that the derailment had been caused by wreckers.

"Bolts from the fishplates, and spikes from the ties were on the embankment along the right of way," he said. "In some instances the bolts were ten feet from the rail joints. We found footprints on the embankment which were not made by passengers or members of the crew. The only motive I can think of is robbery. I have assigned every available railroad detective to the case."

$50,093 JUDGMENT IS GIVEN W. J. HOLE

RIVERSIDE, March 23.—Judge Thomas of Santa Ana, sitting for Judge F. E. Densmore in the Superior Court here Saturday, gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff in the action of W. J. Hole of Los Angeles vs. J. C. Avakian in the sum of $50,093, with interest, also an order of foreclosure on lands lying near this city and held by the defendant. A motion for a change of venue was denied by the court. Attorney's fees of $1500 were allowed.

Officers were told they would be dismissed if they refused service against Ulster's men, that General Paget, General Gough and others had misunderstood their orders he said was true. "The commanding generals in Ireland were informed in December," the premier continued, "that possibly troops would be asked to help the civil authorities. It was explained, however, that the officers stationed in Ulster would be excused. This would be done now if there was any intention of active aggression in connection with the present movement of troops."

SKIDDING AUTO WENT OFF OF GRADE

Of Four Occupants, Miss Ethel Snyder is Most Seriously Hurt

ACCIDENT OCCURRED NEAR VILLA PARK

Machine Turned Completely Over and Came to Stop on its Wheels

Unable to make a turn on a grade on account of loose rocks in the road, an automobile went off the grade and turned a complete somersault yesterday afternoon on the old road to the county park. Of the four occupants, Miss Ethel Snyder was most seriously injured, her back being severely strained.

Those in the machine were Miss Snyder, Miss Lutz Wegley, Guy Welton and Fred Fuller, all of Fullerton. They were returning from a trip up the Santiago canyon and had reached the grade furthest west on the road between Villa Park and the canyon when the machine they were in went off the grade.

There is a sharp turn on the grade. Fuller, who is reputed to be a careful driver, was at the wheel. He found everything going well until he attempted to make the turn. He states that there are some loose rocks in the road, and upon them the rear wheels skidded. Fuller tried to straighten the machine out, but could not, and in an instant it was over the edge of the road.

All four of the occupants jumped clear of the car. Besides having her back badly strained, Miss Snyder suffered numerous bruises and scratches. Miss Wegley got off with a few bruises and a scratch upon her face. Fuller had his back wrenched and received scratches. The machine was not badly damaged, though some of the parts were broken.

Sheriff Ruckdick happened to be traveling in his machine along the road. Miss Snyder, who was unable to sit up, and Miss Wegley were taken into his machine and transported to their homes at Fullerton.

VIVIEN LYONS IN ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Robt Widney, Whom She Once Tried to Kill, Hurries to Her Side in Chicago Hospital

CHICAGO, March 23.—Mrs. Vivien Lyons, the Denver divorcee, who shot and nearly killed Robert Widney, a wealthy Los Angeles real estate man in San Francisco, is believed to be dying from poison swallowed with suicidal intent today. The police were called to the Grand Pacific Hotel where they found Mrs. Lyons lying unconscious on the floor of her room. Widney has arrived here from Kansas City and is expected to shed additional light on the affair.

As soon as he arrived Widney visited the woman at St. Luke's hospital. He then telephoned his intention of reporting to police headquarters immediately. According to the Pacific Hotel clerk, Widney left the place Saturday after paying Mrs. Lyons' room rent for another day. After her attempted suicide, Widney telegraphed from Kansas City asking the hospital authorities for particulars, declaring the woman to be his wife. Mrs. Lyons previously attempted suicide in San Francisco.

ONE KILLED IN BATTLE OF STRIKERS

Train of Strikebreakers Halted and Strikers Fired on Train Guards

STRIKEBREAKERS FELL ON FLOOR TO AVOID SHOTS

2000 Men on Strike for Month from Gould Coupling Works at Lancaster

BUFFALO, March 23.—One man was killed and many hurt in a fight near Lancaster, between the guards on a train carrying strikebreakers to the plant of the Gould Coupler Company, and a crowd of strike sympathizers.

The strikebreakers were recruited here, and when the train approached the coupler works it was stopped by a pile of ties on the tracks. Before the obstructions were removed a throng gathered that began throwing stones, then opened fire with pistols. The strikebreakers crouched on the floors to escape being shot. The guards replied with revolvers and the battle raged for thirty minutes, till finally Stanislaus Skonolski, aged 17, was killed. The strike sympathizers then broke and fled. The train returned to Buffalo. It is understood the company intends asking for the militia to be called.

Two thousand of the men have been on strike for a month past.

CROSS COUNTRY RACE IN THE AIR

Christofferson and Others to Fly from San Francisco to Bakersfield, April 21

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—The successful flight of Silas Christofferson from San Francisco to San Diego has led that intrepid aviator with several others to join forces in a cross-country aeroplane race between here and Bakersfield, to take place on April 21.

The start will be made from the foot of Market street, the flyers circling the clock tower at the Ferry building, and sailing southward. Besides Christofferson, Roy Francis, Guiseppe Siegfried, Frank Bryant and Blakely are entered.

The distance is 318 miles, and two stops will be made en route, the first at Stockton and the second at Fresno, where opportunity will be given for a hasty overhauling of machines and the taking on of gasoline.

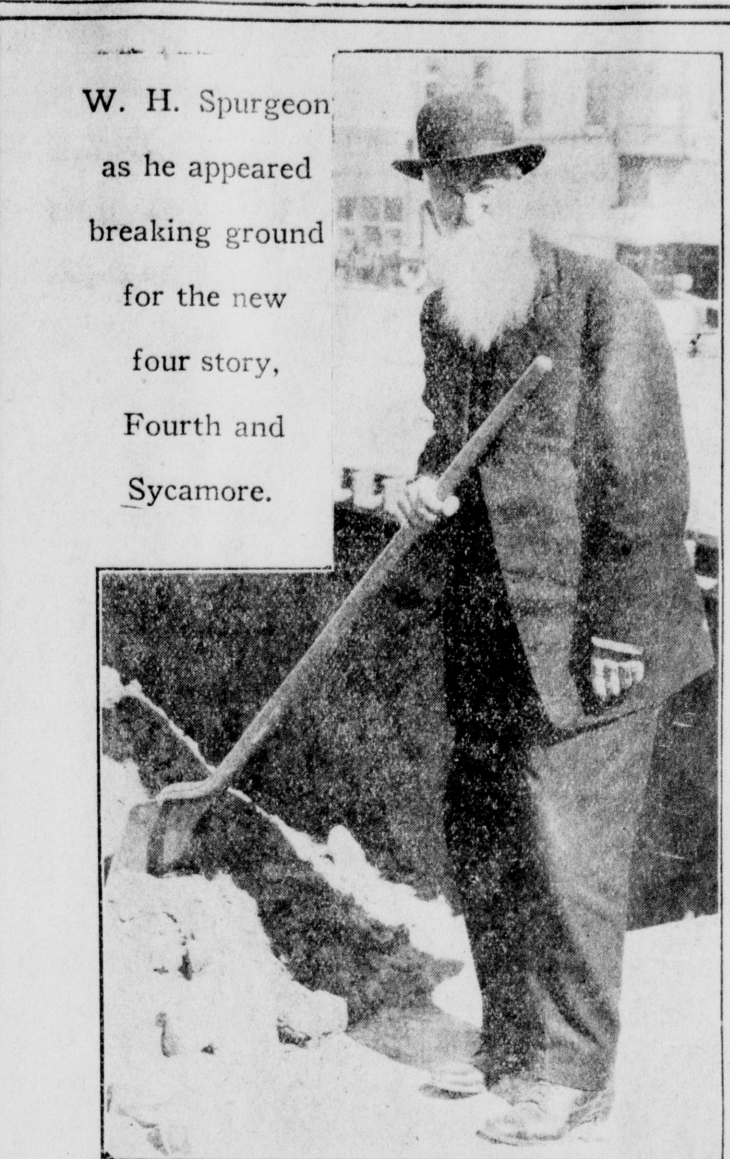

The winner will receive a purse offered by the Bakersfield Chamber of Commerce.

FEDERALS MEET TO ADOPT SCHEDULES

BALTIMORE, March 23.—Unperturbed by Organized Baseball's insistence that they are dead and buried, and with very much the same air assumed by Mark Twain when that notable declared that "reports of his death were greatly exaggerated," Federal Baseball League magnates gathered here today to adopt the playing schedule for 1914. They were all here, including those player-manager stars which the Federals have tried loose from the Organized Baseball, and in discussions of prospects for the coming season there was heard no mention of coffins.

"LAST OF KINGS OF JERUSALEM" DIES IN DESTITUTION

ST. PETERSBURG, March 23.—The last of the "Kings of Jerusalem," Prince Michael of Lusignan, has just died here in poverty and misery. Prince Michael was the last offspring of Lusignan the Crusader, later King of Jerusalem and Cyprus. King Louis of Lusignan fled to Russia when the Turks captured Cyprus in 1332.

THE FOUNDER OF SANTA ANA SEES SKYSCRAPER GOING UP IN THE CITY HE STARTED

Since the time he founded the city nearly fifty years ago and built a store building where the Gilman block now stands, of redwood nailed on straight up and down, William H. Spurgeon, "the father of Santa Ana," has seen two buildings, one wooden and one brick, moved from the site at the corner of Sycamore and Fourth where he broke ground recently preparatory to the erection of a new, modern four-story combination steel and brick block.

Men are now at work erecting the steel columns and girders of the Spurgeon Realty Company's building. Where, fifty years ago, when Mr. Spurgeon first came here, there was nothing but hundreds of acres of mustard, operations are in progress which will result in a few months in a splendid monument to the abiding faith the founder of the city had in its future.

The building, which is of the Class C type, will be erected at a total cost of $100,000. All floors will be connected with a ten-passenger single elevator service. The second, third and fourth floors are to be devoted exclusively to office rooms. Of these there will be 105 in all. They will be of easy access through spacious corridors. The building will have a steam heating plant.

On the Sycamore street side the first of the steel frame work has been erected. This work is attracting a great deal of attention. The speed and exactness with which the workmen are putting up the 90 tons of steel that goes in the first story, are of great interest to onlookers. F. E. Barnett of the Baker Iron Works, Los Angeles, is superintending the erection of the columns and girders.

ROOSEVELT LOSES OUTFIT IN RIVER

Message from Anthony Fiala Tells of Accident in the Wilds of Brazil

NEW YORK, March 23.—The following message has been received here from Mr. Roosevelt's party: SANTAREM, Brazil, (via Pernambuco, St. Vincent and the Azores), March 22.—We have lost everything in the rapids (presumably rapids of a tributary of the Amazon river). Telephone my wife of my safety. Signed) ANTHONY FIALA.

Fiala, the well-known Arctic explorer and resident of Brooklyn, is one of the members of the party of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt which plunged into the unexplored wilds of Central Brazil about nine days ago, expecting to reach Manaus, the commercial metropolis of the Amazon country, about nine hundred miles from the mouth of the river. Santarem, whence the message comes, is on the Tapajos river, close to its confluence with the Amazon and about five hundred miles from the mouth of the latter.

Inquiries made last night showed that the Roosevelt family had heard nothing yet from the Colonel concerning the mishap to the expedition or his own situation.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SAYS SHE IS NOT ALARMED

NEW YORK, March 23.—Mrs. Roosevelt expressed no uneasiness today regarding the message from a member of Colonel Roosevelt's party stating that their outfit had been lost in the rapids. She said: "The fact that I have received no message and that the cable speaks of nobody being injured convinces me there is no cause for anxiety."

MORE SNOW FALLS IN GOTHAM—7000 MEN WORK

CONSTITUTIONAL HEADQUARTERS BEFORE LAREDO, Mexico, March 23.—A big battle at Torreon is on today, the rebels taking the suburbs rapidly. O'SHAUGHNESSY MAY RESIGN—HAS POOR HEALTH
WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Wilson practically admitted today that Charge d'Affairs O'Shaughnessy of Mexico City may resign, adding, however, that poor health is the sole reason. The President characterized as absurd the report that O'Shaughnessy is disgruntled because of the administration's Mexican policy. O'Shaughnessy has handled the Mexican situation in a creditable manner, the President said.

Proposed "Water Commission" Law

Address Delivered Before the City Club, of Los Angeles, by Former Governor George C. Pardee

RIPARIAN DOCTRINE BAD.

There are many, many thousands of acres of fertile lands in this State that are practically non-productive, not because there does not run by them unused water sufficient to irrigate them, but because certain riparian proprietors on the streams below these lands have the legal power to prevent and do prevent the water in the streams from being appropriated and put upon those lands. These riparian proprietors are not themselves compelled to put the water to a useful or beneficial purpose; but they can and do prevent others from doing so, and they can and do demand that it shall run unused to waste into the ocean.

RIPARIAN DOCTRINE COURT-MADE LAW.

The law under which this waste of one of California's most valuable natural resources is made not only possible but actual, was not made by the Legislature, but by the courts. It is called "the doctrine of riparian rights." It originated in the common-law of England, whose moist climate requires drainage rather than irrigation. It was foisted upon this State over half a century ago by a 4-to-3 decision of our State supreme court. The dissenting opinion declared—and it was right in the declaration—that the riparian doctrine is not applicable to the arid and semi-arid conditions of California. But while the minority had the best of the argument, the majority had one more vote and thus, by the vote of four judges, was the unsuited and damaging riparian doctrine fastened upon the people of California. And since that time the supreme court, while upholding the doctrine in a modified and constantly-changing form, has several times repeated the assertion that it is not applicable to California's conditions of climate. Nevertheless, the court has upheld a riparian doctrine, and under it has permitted and still permits riparian proprietors to prohibit hundreds of thousands of acres of fertile California lands from being irrigated with water which, unused by anybody, runs annually to waste into the ocean.

RIPARIAN DOCTRINE WASTEFUL.

That this annual waste of the property of the people of California, worth scores of millions of dollars, is economically and morally wrong needs only its statement to demonstrate its truth. Either the riparian proprietor should use that water for a beneficial purpose greater than that of flooding, beyond its requirements, his cattle pastures, or others who can and will use it properly should be permitted to do so.

PROPOSED LAW MODIFIES RIPARIAN DOCTRINE.

The proposed water commission law provides that riparian proprietors shall, within ten years, put the now wasted waters of the streams of this State to real beneficial use, or permit others to do so. Wisconsin has a similar law, and other States do not give the riparian proprietor the privilege of holding out of use the water that is so necessary to the public prosperity.

PROPOSED LAW PROTECTS VESTED RIGHTS.

It is claimed that the proposed law empowers the Water Commission to take water rights away from those who are lawfully enjoying them. Such is absolutely not the fact, no matter who asserts it. Section 11 of the law defines unappropriated water, in brief, as water which never has been put or is not in process of being put or has ceased to be put to useful and beneficial purposes. From that definition are excepted by the language of the act such water as is in process of being put, with due diligence, to useful and beneficial purposes. The following language is also found in that section: "And all water flowing in any river, stream, canyon, ravine or other natural channel, excepting so far as such waters have been or are being applied to useful and beneficial purposes upon, or insofar as such waters are or may be reasonably needed for useful or beneficial purposes upon lands riparian thereto, or otherwise appropriated, is and are hereby declared to be public waters of the State of California and subject to appropriation in accordance with the provisions of this act."

Section 33 of the proposed law reads as follows:

"All existing lawful appropriations of water or the use thereof, shall be and hereby are respected and upheld to the extent of the amount of water appropriated and actually put or in process of being put, from the initial date of the act of appropriation, with due diligence in proportion to the magnitude of the work necessary properly to utilize the water for the useful or beneficial purpose for which it was appropriated, or for which it is being used."

USE GIVES TITLE.

Furthermore, if anybody is using or is proceeding with real due diligence to put to use any unappropriated water which riparian proprietors do not care to prohibit the appropriation and use of, then such person has acquired a right to the use of that water which no water commission, even if it desired to do so, could take away. Use, use, use—USE, by somebody—is what the people want to see made of their water. But under the law as it now is, bonafide users of water may be, have been, lawed out of it by those whose long purses enable them to do so; and other water rights are held out of use by those whose long purses enable them to threaten long legal resistance to any attempt to dispossess them.

PROPOSED LAW NOT WASTE OF MONEY.

It is also claimed that the proposed law is a useless waste of the people's money. By a singular coincidence, just that same charge was made when it was proposed to create the present Railroad Commission and give it large appropriations with which to protect us from the rapacities of the railroads.

WATER COMMISSION TO BE EXPERTS.

Briefly, the proposed law creates a water commission, consisting of three members to be appointed by the Governor, and the Governor and the State Engineer, ex-officio. The three appointed members, the law provides, "shall be men of practical knowledge or experience in the application and use of water for irrigation, mining and municipal purposes, and shall be so appointed that at least one thereof shall have had practical knowledge and experience in the use of water for agricultural purposes, and one thereof shall have had practical knowledge and experience in the use of water for mining purposes, and one thereof shall have had practical knowledge and experience in the use of water for municipal purposes."

It would appear, therefore, that the language of the act is opposed to the oft-repeated declaration of some of its opponents that the Water Commission could consist of a lot of useless and worthless politicians who know nothing about water—even should the Governor desire to appoint that kind of commissioners.

COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE WATER RIGHTS.

Then the law, following as closely the Oregon law as the constitution of this State will permit, gives the Water Commission power to investigate water rights, get together the testimony concerning those rights on the various streams of this State, giving every interested person the right to be inexpensively heard. Then, when the commission, representing the whole people, shall have gotten together the testimony and shall have opened it to the inspection of all interested parties, it shall listen to anybody who may desire to contest the right set up by any other claimant.

COMMISSION REPORTS TO SUPERIOR COURT.

Then the commission shall proceed to ascertain what the water rights of the various claimants are. And those ascertainment and all the evidence and testimony collected by the commission shall be filed with the clerk of the superior court "in and for the county in which such stream, stream system, lake or other body of water or any part thereof is situated."

ATTORNEY-GENERAL BRINGS SUIT.

Within one year after the commission shall have filed in the superior court the evidence and its ascertainment founded upon that evidence, the Attorney-General, upon the direction of the Water Commission, shall bring an action in the superior court, in the name of the people of the State of California, to quiet title of the State or the people thereof to the water. If the claimants are satisfied with the ascertainment of the Water Commission—as all of them have been in Oregon and all but ten have been in Wyoming—none of them will be put to the expense and trouble of appearing when the case is called for trial in the superior court, which will proceed to determine and decree the rights of the various claimants upon the evidence submitted to it by the commission.

If, however, any claimant shall not be satisfied with the ascertainment made by the commission in regard to his own or anybody else's water right, he shall have the right—which could not be denied him, if anybody wanted to deny it—to contest the suit brought by the Attorney-General to settle the water rights which have been ascertained by the commission.

But if any claimant does not care to have his rights settled by the suit brought by the Attorney-General, he is authorized, of course, to employ his own lawyers and experts and bring suit himself.

COURT DECREES RIGHTS.

And whether the Attorney-General or a claimant brings the suit, the court, after considering all the evidence submitted to it, may affirm, modify, or reject the ascertainment made by the Water Commission and may make other or different findings as in its judgment the evidence justifies.

SUITS UNDER PRESENT LAW UNSATISFACTORY.

Under existing conditions, water rights are settled, or rather unsettled, only by suits at law, in which only the parties to them are represented. The evidence in such suits is presented only by the parties to them, who employ experts who, because they are paid by one party or the other, are as much advocates of the parties who pay them as are the lawyers on the two sides; and their testimony is, therefore, not infrequently of very little value to the courts in dealing out justice. In all such suits the rights of other claimants than those party to the suit are not considered, and the rights of the public, the real owners of the water, are entirely neglected. The proposed law takes heed of everybody's rights, including those of the public; and it settles all the rights in one inexpensive, comprehensive suit, which is binding on everybody because everybody is a party to it.

CALIFORNIANS NOT DIFFERENT FROM OTHER PEOPLE.

It may be, of course, that the water claimants of California are different from those of Oregon, Wyoming and other States, where water commissions have long been satisfactorily, inexpensively and quickly settling water rights. It may be, of course, that our people would rather settle their water rights by the slow, expensive, never-completed, lawyer-and-court-and-expert system. It may be, too, that the Governors of Oregon and Wyoming have been more honest or efficient than the present Governor of California is or his successors may be hoped to be, so that these other States have had more honest or efficient water commissions than California may ever hope to have. If so, then of course California is really up against it.

To be sure, there is a dignity about an oath-bound judge which doesn't apply, in the minds of the opponents of this bill, to oath-bound commissioners such as the Railroad Commission of this State. But I venture the assertion that Governors who can be and are trusted, as the Governors of California long have been, still are and long will be, to appoint judges—Supreme, Appellate and Superior—may possibly be trusted to appoint water commissioners as well as railroad commissioners.

PROPOSED LAW COMPELS USE.

The proposed law also provides that no man may go out on a stream and, without proof of his willingness and ability to use it, appropriate any amount of water he may want to, and hold it out of use until he either abandons it, is bought off or lawed out of it by someone who really will and can use it. To the Water Commission, representing the people, must every would-be appropriator present his application and with it satisfactory proof that he can and will develop and put to use the water he asks the people for the right to use. He must do this just as a railroad or any other public service corporation must apply to the Railroad Commission for permission to issue bonds, and convince the commission that it needs the money in the interest of the public. The public has the right, and in self-defense must exercise it, to require that everybody who proposes to deal in our public necessities shall prove his good faith and ability to perform.

The proposed law provides that the Water Commission, having granted permission for the appropriation of water, shall see to it that the permittee proceeds with proper due diligence to carry out his promises to the public, and develops his appropriation, and puts it to the beneficial use for which he was given permission to appropriate it. If he doesn't live up to his agreement with the public, if he doesn't use proper due diligence, if he does not put the water to the beneficial use he said he wanted it for, the commission is authorized to rescind its permission—the applicant having the right of appeal to the courts.

PROPOSED COMMISSION INVESTIGATES BY WHOLESALE.

Section 10 of the proposed act reads as follows: "The State Water Commission is hereby authorized and empowered to investigate for the purposes of this act all streams, stream systems, lakes or other bodies of water, and to take testimony in regard to the rights to water or the use of water thereon or therein, and to ascertain whether or not such water, or any portion thereof, heretofore filed upon or attempted to be appropriated by any person, firm, association or corporation, is appropriated under the laws of this State."

ONLY ILLEGAL HOLDERS OF WATER OUGHT TO OBJECT.

Only such persons, firms, associations or corporations as are of the opinion that their water rights have not been appropriated under the laws of this State—and for foundation of all such laws is the use of the water—ought, it seems to me, to object to having those rights looked into by a competent representative of the owners of the waters of this State, that is, the people. I have not forgotten how violently opposed to public investigation of their titles certain Oregon gentlemen were who afterward went to the penitentiary for land frauds against the people of this nation.

UNUSED WATER RETURNED TO PUBLIC.

In short, the law provides that any water which has been or may be appropriated and not be put and continue to be put to a beneficial use shall be looked upon as unappropriated water and be subject to appropriation by him who will use it and continue to use it.

That is the law today. But nobody is authorized to find out for the public what water is unappropriated. Those who object to any change in the present law along the lines laid down in the proposed law object only to having fraud exposed and the unused property of the public restored to the public. Who would have rooted out the Oregon land fraud if there had been no representative of the public to do it?

AS TO GOLD RESERVE

(From the Los Angeles Financial News)

English bankers have been discussing the question of gold reserves and the result of these discussions is summarized in the following cablegram. The cable says:

"If the financial history of any civilized country during the last two or three hundred years were to be written, the question of gold reserves or monetary reserves of some sort, would come in for a very considerable share of attention. In England this melting-pot of opinions boiled furiously for many years before Peel's bank act of 1844, and though it has been more or less 'off the boil' (as housewives say) since then, still it has been simmering all the time. Now it gives evidence of steaming up again. In England we are quite satisfied with our system of currency. The only thing is that it is too successful in allowing us to work on a very small margin of reserve. In other words, many competent critics say that our stock of gold is much too small for our business, and that for the sake of safety we would be content to keep a larger amount of capital idle, even though keeping capital idle is, in itself, a wasteful process."

"Sir Edward Holden, chairman of the London City and Midland Bank, now one of England's biggest joint stock banks, is raising the question now. He points, as the fashion is, to Germany and shows how the Reichsbank last year increased her holding of gold from 39,000,000 pounds to 59,000,000 pounds sterling. Moreover, during the same period an addition of 12,000,000 pounds sterling to the imperial war chest was commenced. Germany, that is, added more than 20,000,000 pounds to her stock of gold last year, though at a considerable financial loss. Another thing, Sir Edward points out, is that the new American currency law empowers the new central banks to open agencies in London, and also allows every national bank having a capital and surplus of not less than 200,000 pounds to establish branches in London. The effect of this must be the creation of a considerable amount of new credit. There are already no fewer than 120 banks of the colonies and other countries established in London, and Sir Edward's point is that all these base the credit which they create on the small gold reserve kept by the Bank of England, which fluctuates between about 26,000,000 and 40,000,000 pounds sterling, and that the new American branch banks, if they settle over here, will increase the credit created without in any way increasing the basis upon which the credit rests."

"All this is only understandable with some knowledge of the English system of banking and currency, and the following sketch will, it is hoped, refresh the memories of those who already know and enlighten those who do not."

"First of all it must be clearly understood that there is no law in England regulating the proportion of cash to be held against deposits. But banks have to publish balance sheets, and in those balance sheets a reasonable proportion of cash to deposits must be shown. Public opinion has of recent years fixed this proportion at about 18 or 20 per cent. This would be good if it were all cash. But this is not the case. The item reads, 'Cash in hand and at the Bank of England.' And here we reach the very crux of the question. All the great London clearing bankers keep accounts with the Bank of England. The clearing of checks between them each day is settled by one credit or one debit, as the case may be, in the account of each bank in the books of the Bank of England. No gold passes, one debt represented by a check has been cancelled by another debt represented by a check, and the total of the banker's balances in the books of the Bank of England remains unchanged. Thus the huge majority of transactions are accomplished by means of checks, gold only being required as pocket money, so to speak, i. e., for the odds and ends of expenditure. Consequently it will easily be seen that so far as internal requirements are concerned, the large trade of England could be carried on with a microscopic amount of gold. But England has trade relations with every country under the sun, as a consequence of which a demand for gold may, and does come, from any quarter. Moreover, England has absolutely free trade in gold. Any one who has, or who can manufacture, a credit in London can draw gold and export it. Consequently, with the smallest stock of gold of any great commercial country England is committed to the apparently desperate venture of meeting the demands of all comers. And the only weapon of protection in her hand is the bank rate, which she can raise to attract gold, or lower, to let gold out again, when the pressure is past."

"We must go back now to what we called the crux of the question, a little further back. The item in bankers' balance sheets reads, as was said 'Cash in hand and at the Bank of England.' Now every banker treats his balance at the Bank of England as cash. Just as we all do in the case of our own banker. But just as our own banker does not keep all our balance in cash, but naturally uses part of it in loans and discounts to others of his customers, so does the Bank of England use a part of the bankers' balances for its own purposes. It is true that the Bank of England keeps a proportion of actual cash to deposits much larger than does any other banker, say about 50 per cent. But the fact that it does not keep 100 per cent, and the further fact that the cash it keeps is in the form of notes partly based on securities, have to be faced. Moreover, there is a further consideration. The London bankers are themselves entrusted with balances by country bankers, in whose balance sheets the item appears, 'Cash in hand and with London agents.' This cash with London agents is treated by the said London agents as part of their ordinary deposits. That is to say, the greater part is used in ordinary loans, etc., and the rest held in cash or deposited with the Bank of England."

"Thus we see that practically all the other banks only keep in hand sufficient money for their tills, relying on the Bank of England to keep the general stock of gold for the whole community. The Bank of England, however, was founded for the sake of profit. It has shareholders for whom it has to earn a dividend, and though this consideration undoubtedly ranks second and public duty first, in its counsels and actions, still it is a consideration and leads naturally enough to the employment of about 50 per cent of the funds deposited with it. Sir Edward Holden quoted the liabilities of the English banks alone, excluding Scottish and Irish, as $60,000,000 pounds, to which has to be added 250,000,000 pounds due to postoffice savings banks depositors; i. e., 1,110,000,000 pounds, the only visible reserve, against which is the 40,000,000 pounds in the Bank of England."

GENERAL BOND NEWS

(From the Los Angeles Financial News)

Taxpayers of Auburn, Placer County, have presented a petition to the trustees of the school district in which the city is situated to call an election for the purpose of voting a bond issue to provide for new school buildings.

The $3,000,000 issue is to be sold on March 30, and will be partly taken up by the following counties: Humboldt, Butte, Santa Barbara, Solano, Glenn, Shasta, Imperial, Alameda and San Diego.

The San Diego Gas and Electric Company has been granted authority by the State Railroad Commission to issue $18,000 5 per cent bonds for the purpose of refunding capital expenditures.

A mass meeting of citizens in National City held for the purpose of considering a proposition to issue $60,000 for high school purposes unanimously endorsed the plan.

New Castle (Placer County) school trustees are being urged by taxpayers to call an election to vote on a bond proposition of $18,000 for erection of a school.

The allied School Associations of Court House school district in Santa Rosa is making a vigorous fight for the proposed school bond issue for the district.

Due to the apathy of those favoring a $1,230,000 bond issue for school purposes in Berkeley the proposition was defeated at the special election.

The total of municipal bond sales during the month of January in the United States, 296 municipalities being included amounted to $83,490,025.

POLY WON BOTH HERE AND AT BEACH

Victory in Debate Raises Santa Ana's Standing from Sixth to Second Place

HUNTINGTON BEACH OUTCLASSED BY LOCALS

Polytechnic High School to Debate Long Beach for Championship

Last Friday evening the Santa Ana high school debating team overwhelmingly defeated the Huntington Beach representatives in the second southwestern debate of this season. This victory raised Santa Ana's standing in the league percentage from sixth to second place, Long Beach being first on the list.

The deciding debate for the debating championship of the South will be held between Santa Ana and Long Beach some time in the future, perhaps next month. The final contest will be of especial interest to debating circles and a large number of rooters will no doubt support the teams in their championship fight with Long Beach.

The Debate

A large number of rooters were on hand last Friday night at both debates, to boost for their respective schools and favorite debaters. The question under discussion was, "Resolved. That the Commission Form of Government Should be Generally Adopted by American Municipalities." The affirmative of each school stayed at home while the negative was sent to the opposing school.

Santa Ana was most ably represented in the debate at the intermediate high school by Bruce Wallace and Frank West who carried off the big end of the 197-23 to 188 points score.

Bruce Wallace, Santa Ana's first affirmative speaker opened the debate with a good array of logical arguments. His delivery was strong and he showed great improvement even over his showing in the previous Southwestern debate.

He was followed by Mr. Arnold, Huntington Beach's first negative, who proved quite strong in argument. Santa Ana's second speaker, Mr. West, gave the strongest kind of support to the question and backed up his argument with concrete instances. His delivery was good and he showed a thorough knowledge of the subjects.

The second negative, Miss Linn, brought forth some good points but gave the affirmative food for rebuttal which they took advantage of.

After the prepared speeches were given each speaker was allowed six minutes for rebuttal after which the first affirmative was given four minutes for final refutation. In the rebuttal was where Santa Ana clinched the victory as the Huntington Beach team was unable to meet the issues of the local debaters.

At Huntington Beach

The affirmative 187-16, the negative 195-14 was the verdict rendered by the judges after Beverley Anderson and Keith Davis, of Santa Ana, had finished showing the Huntington Beach team the finer points of debating. Taking what was considered by many to be the weak side of the question, the two negative debaters brought forth argument after argument against the commission form of government until the affirmative debaters could find no way of refuting the argument advanced by this negative team.

Beverley Anderson's delivery was splendid and his work in his constructive speech and rebuttal was very good.

Keith Davis showed a very good knowledge of the question and his prepared speech was one of Santa Ana's strongest assets when the judges came to figure the score.

The Coach

Great credit should be given the debating coach, Miss Kistler, to whom no small share of the success of debating this year is due. Her fine coaching and conscientious drilling in delivery greatly aided the debaters.

With the services of Miss Kistler the local debaters will have no excuse should they fail to defeat Long Beach in the coming championship contest.

LACKING PEP LOCAL PLAYERS LOST GAME

Schoolmasters of Los Angeles Defeated Santa Anas by 6 to 5 Score

Schoolmasters 6; Santa Ana 5.

The above figures tell the story of the game played between the schoolmasters of Los Angeles and the poly high boys Saturday. The game was slow and lacked the usual "pep" of the locals.

Warren was on the hill for the locals, went the entire distance and pitched a good game of ball, while Brown on the receiving end played his usual game.

The visitors had just a little more luck than the poly high lads in the earlier stages of the game which gave them the commanding lead that gave them the game by the above score.

Carrillo and Carver were not there with the big stick as usual.

The ninth proved to be the only time that the locals showed much pep. By taking a few more chances they came near slipping it over on the schoolmasters, scoring three runs.

Joe Irvine's hitting was the feature of the game. He got two doubles and a single out of four trips to the plate.

PLACENTIA WILL DRILL WELLS

PLACENTIA, March 23.—A well-known resident of Placentia has formed a private stock company and will drill two oil wells in the North Placentia territory. Over $100,000 in cash has been subscribed; it is estimated that each well will cost $50,000. While there will be some local capital behind the new company nearly all of the cash will come from the east. If oil is found in either of these wells, a new section will be opened a mile distant from producing wells.

The Thomas Strain oil well has reached a depth of over 4000 feet. Considerable oil sand and gas has been encountered. Mr. Strain is planning to give the well a test in a short time. This test will cost over $10,000. Up to the present time, this well and one which was abandoned have cost about $50,000.

JASPER WILL COLLECT DATA

Expositions Commission Turns Advertising Job Over to Competent Man

Los Angeles Times: An opportunity survey of Southern California, complete as to the minutest detail as to that which the homeseeker may desire in the way of diversified information on agricultural, industrial and mining opportunities, has been undertaken for the Southern California Panama Expositions Commission by J. A. Jasper, former commissioner from San Diego county.

Information collected by Jasper is to be systematized later for tablet presentation to interested visitors at the Panama-Pacific and Panama-California International Expositions in 1915 and is expected to be the read-iest index ever provided in any country for prospective settlers. Jasper will be aided in his work by Norman E. Juers, who is now collecting Southern California exhibits for the two expositions and is well acquainted with the widely diversified products of the empire composing the Southland.

A resident of Southern California for thirty-five years, a farmer in both Orange county and the Imperial valley, and for eighteen years a member of the Board of Supervisors of San Diego county, Jasper is considered by the commission as the best man that could be secured for the work. He is succeeded as San Diego county commissioner by W. M. Irwin.

Plans to hold the next meeting of the commission April 9, in the soon-to-be-completed Southern California Counties building at the Panama-California International Exposition, are now being made. The building, which will cost $70,000 complete, will probably be turned over to the commission the coming week. Its decoration and the planting of the four acres of ground to typical California plants will follow. The installation of exhibits will begin in the fall.

RINGS DISCOVERED AMONG SOME JARS IN KELLER KITCHEN

Fred Keller has informed Constable Frank Heard that the diamond ring and opal ring, which were missing the night of the fire at Keller's home, had been found among some jars of fruit in the kitchen of the house. How the rings got there Keller does not know.

The fire occurred on the night of March 8. The house was gutted by fire, but some of the furniture was not destroyed. Keller said that the rings had been left in a secret drawer of a bureau in a front room. After the fire was put out and the place searched, it was found that the rings were gone.

Ed. Molina and Steve Perez were held under suspicion in connection with the fire. Neither man is in custody, and the investigation failed to develop anything against the two men further than that they were the first ones at the fire and that their stories of how they got there and what they did differed materially.

The fruit jars were stored under a table in the kitchen, and were not disturbed by the fire. Keller says that in straightening out the place the rings were found.

GARY THE SAME MAN SHOT BY REINERT

Taken to San Diego on Warrant; Wanted Here for Giving Bad Check

Carlton N. Gary, arrested in Los Angeles on a charge of fraud in San Diego and passing a bad check at Oceanside, is reported by the Los Angeles papers to be the same Gary who was shot in Santa Ana by Edward Reinert, a rancher who at that time owned a farm between Stanton and Artesia. Gary is also wanted in this county on a bad check affair. Six weeks ago while leaving San Diego he passed through this county, and at San Juan Capistrano gave the Marshall Garage a check for about $6 for auto repairs and gasoline. The check was returned by a San Diego bank, and ten days ago
Marshall swore to a complaint here against Gary. It is not likely that Gary will be prosecuted in this county, as San Diego has him and will prosecute him for offenses there.

Gary had poor luck with the courts in this county. He got into trouble with Reinert in March, 1909. In a deal with Reinert, Gary manipulated to get hold of a mortgage belonging to Reinert. Reinert and Gary met in Attorney H. J. Foray's office to talk the matter over. Convinced that Gary had defrauded him and while greatly excited, Reinert drew a revolver and fired two shots at Gary. Gary was taken to the Santa Ana Hospital, where he hovered between life and death for days as the result of the penetration of the abdomen by one of Reinert's bullets.

Reinert was tried by a jury on a charge of assault with intent to kill.
The jury acquitted him. Civil actions were brought to restore Reinert's property rights, and in those actions
Gary was loser.

The Times says: Carlton N. Gary, an attorney of San Diego and said to be a nephew of Judge E. A. Gary, head of the steel trust, was arrested by Detective Grant Robert yesterday on a warrant from San Diego charging him with felony embezzlement.

According to the police records Gary has been arrested previously on the charge of having passed bad checks. His description is registered in the gallery of criminals.

Carlton N. Gary is general counsel for the First Mortgage and Real Estate Company at San Diego. He had been trailed since February 4 by San Diego County Detective McDuell.
Charles H. Doty of San Diego charges embezzlement of $250 through a deal operated through the mortgage company.

Since the warrant for his arrest was issued on February 4, Gary has been missing from San Diego. On that day while driving through Oceanside Gary stopped and gave a check for $10 to J. Culp for repairing his automobile. The check is alleged fictitious.

Gary lived in San Diego for about a year and assisted in promotion of the mortgage company and several of the subsidiary corporations of the company are now involved in civil actions in the Superior Court alleging fraud and misrepresentation.

Friends of Gary claim that he is a clever corporation lawyer, but that in this case he is being made the scapegoat for others. He has been living at La Jolla, where his wife now is.
None of the officials of the mortgage company could be located last night and the company is said to have abandoned operations. The officers are:
W. L. Bennington, president; W. C.
Hale, vice-president; W. C. Hale, Jr., secretary; H. E. Swayne, treasurer.

After his departure from San Diego
Gary was trailed to Chicago by Detective McDuell and then to San Francisco and later located in Los Angeles.

Gary formed the Palms Land, Light and Water Company together with half a dozen prominent Los Angeles men some years ago. While preparing to put their land on the market in 1907 the panic caught them and the company dissolved.

COUNT BOZENTA DIED TUESDAY LAST WEEK

Husband of the Late Madame Modjeska Passed Away
in Germany

Through a telegram received today from Ralph Modjeska, it was learned here that Count Bozenta, husband of the late Madame Modjeska, died in Rzegocin, Province Posen, Germany, last Tuesday. Count Bozenta was a well known figure in Orange county, where he and his distinguished wife lived for many years, and by those who knew him he was highly esteemed and loved.

Count Bozenta was with the famous tragedienne during her last illness and at her death, which occurred at Bay Island, East Newport, in this county, and when with her remains to Poland. Since returning to Europe, he had been living with his brother.

No details of his death are known here. The message telling of it was received by Mr. and Mrs. James S.
Rice of Tustin, who were among Madame Modjeska's and Count Bozenta's closest friends here, from Ralph Modjeski, son of Madame Modjeska.

For many years the Modjeska home was at Arden in the Santiago canyon. For the last two years of Mod-jeska's life they lived at Tustin and Bay Island.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With it to Restore Color, Gloss, Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.
Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Advertisement.

FOR THE LOVE OF BEAUTY, DON'T!

Nothing is more beautiful in a young girl than naturalness and simplicity, whether of manner or dress. Nothing is more disgusting in a young girl than artificiality and extremes in manners or dress.

Some of the extremes affected by some young girls are little short of vulgar.

For instance, one girl was seen today on her way to the grade schools—a girl about fourteen or fifteen years old—whose hair was dressed in such a way as to be absolutely deforming. It was clownish. It reminded one of some caricature on the stage or in the comic section of the metropolitan Sunday paper.

Her dress was almost as bad as her hair—but thank God! it wasn't HER hair, at least not much of it.

In a simple wash dress that would cost but a few dollars, and with her hair falling in a thick plait down her back, this girl would have been beautiful. As she was made up, she was hideous. She had no beautiful little pearl-tinted transparent ears, no noble serene brow, no eyebrows—these ornaments which God gave her were obliterated by a mat of near-hair out of the tangle of which her eyes peered like those of some little beast, all their expression perverted or destroyed.

This was an extreme case, to be sure, but there are many extreme cases and very many instances of lesser degrees of offensiveness of this kind.

Girls who have no more sense than to thus deform themselves should be taken in hand by their mothers, and if the mothers are lacking in good taste or common sense teachers should take hold at least to the extent of heart-to-heart talks with such girls.

Aside from the physical deformation, such hair dressing and its attendant nonstrosity of dress and mannerisms, cannot fail to have disastrous mental and moral effect on the character and ideas of youth.

God makes most young girls beautiful in body, mind and soul—they are all beautiful in some way if they don't deface or deform themselves, just as there is one glory of the stars, another of the moon and another of the sun.

Why, then, will girls mar and destroy their beauty?

PRIMARY POINTERS

Two minor things about the registration need to be made entirely clear.

One is that if you have registered under one party name, you can change it for the asking, at any time up to the closing of the books.

Another is that you can vote for any person you like, of any party, at the primaries, but, if you do so, what you are voting for is to give him the nomination of your own party.

If you are registered as a Democrat you can vote in the Democratic primary for Hiram Johnson, but it will be a vote to give him the Democratic nomination, and will not count toward giving him the Progressive or Republican nomination.

And, finally, if what you are interested in is local county candidates, you do not need to consider that question at all in considering your party registration. County nominations are all non-partisan. The names of all the aspirants will be on all the ballots of all the parties and the votes cast for them in the Democratic, Republican or Progressive primaries, or on separate non-partisan ballots by those who have not registered for any party primaries, will all be lumped together to see who are the nominees.

There will be no Republican or Democratic or Progressive candidates for sheriff or county clerk or tax collector, and the like, but the two candidates who get the highest total votes at all the primaries combined will go on the ballot at the final election—unless one candidate should get a majority over all others at the primaries, in which case his name will be the only one to go on the final ballot as the result of the primaries.

This applies to all county local offices, as well as to all judicial and school offices, even the state ones.

It does not apply to governor or other state offices, nor to the legislative offices—United States senator, members of Congress, or members of the legislature. Nominations for these offices are party nominations, and each voter can vote only to determine the nominees of his own party.

He can vote for any person he likes, whether a member of his own party or not (even for an aspirant to the nomination of another party) but it will be a vote to give that person the nomination of his own party.—California Outlook.

WILD BIRD SONGS TRAPPED BY EDISON IN FLORIDA SWAMPS

NEW YORK, March 23.—Blank phonograph records "planted" in the heart of a Florida swamp and set running by the touch on a push button of a man hidden in the brush a mile away have trapped some of the sweetest music of the world and will shortly be brought north to release their strange melody. The singers were the wild birds of the Everglades and the hidden "hunter" was Thomas A. Edison.

RUNAWAY FREIGHT TRAIN IN WRECK

18 Cars With Cargo of Oranges, Oil, Lumber Smashed—Loss $50,000—Tramps Killed

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—From leading air brakes a freight train of eighteen cars, left standing at San Dimas by Conductor H. M. Flack while the engine was detached to pick up more cars, slipped away in the darkness of Sunday morning about 3 o'clock and after running at a terrific rate of speed through a half dozen small towns on the main line of the Santa Fe, wrecked itself and its freight at Azusa.

The loss was $50,000 and two tramps are believed to have been killed in the wreck. The cars were loaded with oranges, lumber and oil. The train was wrecked just in time to avoid plunging into another freight train with its crew.

WOMAN LEAPS INTO TAR PIT TO SAVE HER TWO SMALL SONS

COLTON, March 23.—Mrs. Juan Alvarez, a Mexican, offered her life to save her two small sons Saturday when she plunged into a pit of tar where the lads were slowly sinking. The mother heard the screams of the boys and running to the pit leaped into the tar. She began to sink but managed to keep the heads of the boys above the surface. When the trio was rescued the mother had sunk to her chin.

KING REFUSES AID FOR ANIMALS

MUNICH, March 23.—In refusing to become the patron of a number of proposed asylums for sick animals in Bavaria, King Louis administered a stinging rebuke to a deputation of aristocratic women who sought his aid. After inquiring how much money they had collected, his majesty said: "My dear ladies, sick animals we will, but sick men we help. I beg you to use your money for the sick, needy and helpless of the human family. You will find them far more worthy objects than sick cats, dogs and horses. I hope you will take my words to heart."

Experts from various states and countries were to give demonstrations of the best thing in the dental profession they could offer. Two hundred Illinois dentists will have charge of the program tomorrow. On the third and last day Chicago dentists will have charge of the clinic.

WHEN ROOT "PUT ONE OVER" ON BRYAN

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Former Secretary of State Root is getting considerable amusement these days watching Secretary Bryan on the job that Root himself used to hold. Emerging from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the other day Bryan put his arms around the shoulders of a newspaper man, and said, to the committee members: "Shall I tell them all about Mexico?" "By all means," "pitiless publicity," commented Root, quoting one of Bryan's favorite phrases of the old days. Whereupon Bryan gave an excellent imitation of a clam.

WANT FREIGHT RATES LOWERED

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Merchants in Washington have lost a time-honored privilege—the right to have their freight backed up to the rear door and have it dumped there without extra charge. Consequently Washington merchants aren't any too well pleased, and today they aired their grievances before the Interstate Commerce Commission. They admit that they haven't a show of getting free store delivery reinstated, but they told the commission today that, if the delivery is omitted the old freight rates ought to be lowered.

MODERN LAW COLLEGES LITTLE GOOD, SAYS JUDGE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—Superior Court Judge Coffey hasn't a very high opinion of modern law colleges. He believes that they neglect the essentials of legal training. Along these lines he remarked from the bench that "Not a lawyer in this city knows how to examine a witness in the probate department. I've never yet found a correct appraisal of property. Harvard law college, too, is as bad as Hastings."

RECIPES OF OUR PIONEER MOTHERS

for the home treatment of disease were wonderfully dependable. True, they knew nothing of drugs, but owed their success to the roots, herbs and barks of the field. It is interesting to note that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful remedy for female ills we have, was originally prepared for home use from one of these recipes. Its fame has now spread from shore to shore, and thousands of American women now well and strong claim they owe their health and happiness to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.—Advertisement.

FOR ORANGE DAY

California's New Celebration is Observed at Housewarming of the Will Adams Home

A most delightful affair took place at the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Adams in Tustin Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Adams and Miss Edith Adams entertained a number of their friends in honor of the new California celebration, Orange Day.

The spacious rooms were fragrant with orange blossoms, while baskets of golden fruit were significant of the day. The celebrating of Orange Day seemed fitting and emblematic of life's golden glow for youth, and the fragrant atmosphere with the brilliant setting for the pleasures of the evening seemed to have a decided effect on the hearts of those present.

During the evening whilst was played progressively, first prizes being won by Miss Maude Compton of Los Angeles and Dr. Garland Ross of Santa Ana, the consolation prizes going to Miss Kate Munger and Lester Carden. At the close of the evening delicious refreshments were served, consisting of fruit salad served in orange shells, crystallized tangerines with sandwiches and coffee, and orange ice with orange cake.

The company of congenial people dispersed at a late hour, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Will Adams many happy years in their lovely new home. When Orange Day was the uppermost motif in the evening's event, yet the affair might well have been termed a housewarming, as Mr. and Mrs. Adams have been in their pretty home but four weeks. Mr. Adams is an orange grower, having a ranch property on East Seventeenth street besides the five acres of his home place on First street, where Saturday's event took place. Mrs. Adams and Miss Edith Adams were admirable hostesses.

MARRIAGE LICENSE GOES WITH VASSAR DIPLOMAS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.

On his way to Honolulu recently, former President James H. Taylor of Vassar College stopped here long enough to utter the following comment upon higher education for women: "With every second diploma issued to a Vassar graduate goes a marriage license. After the age of thirty years is reached, the percentage of marriages among Vassar girls is higher than among others. College education makes women more marriageable; they wed more quickly and stay married longer. The women of tomorrow will be the better educated sex. They are advancing; men are retrograding. Women are becoming more physically perfect than men."

For Eastern Friends

A charming luncheon on Saturday was given in honor of two old friends of Xenia, Ohio, by Mrs. William M. Smart, at her North Main street home. The complimented guests were Mrs. Justin C. Kelly and Mrs. Julia B. McGervey, who are spending the winter in Los Angeles, and those invited to meet them were ladies who formerly resided in the vicinity of Xenia and who had known the visiting guests. They were Mrs. C. C. Collins, Mrs. J. E. Collins, Misses Adda and Minnie Cowan, Miss Esther Corey and Miss Mary Anderson. Others at the table were Mr. and Mrs. Smart, Misses Mary and Janet Smart.

Mrs. Smart used the Orange Day motif both in table decorations and in the luncheon menu, the latter being opened with orange cocktails. The favors were clusters of orange blossoms and their glossy leaves, and a mound of oranges centered the table, the fragrant blossoms and leaves combining with the golden fruit in artistic result.

W. C. T. U. Meeting
The W. C. T. U. will meet on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. J. P. Williams, 1601 North Main St. Subject: "Household Economics." Miss Rosa Clausen of the Domestic Science department will give a talk. All are cordially invited.

Pretty Dinner Party
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Prince were host and hostess on Friday evening with a pretty 7:30 o'clock dinner in which pink carnations were used in an exquisite centerpiece for the daintily appointed table. The pink color motif ran through the entire menu and in other decorations of the table.

Red roses were used in the other rooms of the house. Covers were laid at dinner for Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, Madame Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vandermast, Jr. and Mrs. Murray Vandermast, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Vandermast, and Miss Ruby Wright.

Street Chapeaux
In street hats, the sailors in a variety of forms and the high side medium or small hats are the most popular. In trimmings, flowers and ribbons are the rage, ornaments playing a big part. In colors, black is par excellence, while tango in several shades and a French blue ranging from dark to light, are leading colors. All of these tints, trimmings and shapes were seen galore in Saturday's events and for style in creating, combining of materials and artistic treatment the Crookshank-Beatty Company showing of spring hats undoubtedly rivaled that of the city stores.

Personal
J. S. McDannald is down from Oakdale for a three or four days' visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Luce of Minneapolis, Minn., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Royal J. Sweet of East Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Howells of Los Angeles were over-Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Phillips. Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Howells are sisters.

Alfred Pollard and Verne Hilliard of Tustin left this morning for Caldwell, Idaho. They will make an extended stay in that section.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Bower of East Pine street left this afternoon for a ten weeks' pleasure trip to Welsh, Louisiana, and Belle county, Texas. They will attend the golden wedding anniversary of Mrs. Bower's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Bowers, of Welsh, Louisiana.

Mrs. J. C. Templeton of Palo Alto is visiting friends in the city.

WEAKENED OXY NINE LOSES TO FULLERTON
Fullerton High School defeated the Occidental baseball team 2 to 0 Saturday in Los Angeles. The Tigers put up an extremely poor exhibition of the national pastime. They made only one hit off of pitchers who had little stuff on the ball and muffed many plays. The main reason for it all seemed to be the half-heartedness of the Tigers. It was an off-day for them and it made sure to be away off.

The Highland Parkers were weakened, however, by the absence of their star player, Duke Walk, Catcher Sid Foster and Harry Kirkpatrick, the crack shortstop, without a doubt the best collegian ball player in the south today.

SMART SPRING OPENING

"The Daylight Store" Glowed With Color and Dainty Fabrics at Reception

The splendid showing of chic spring millinery and fetching spring goods in the handsome new store of the Crookshank-Beatty Co. on Saturday afternoon and evening was undoubtedly one of the most successful that popular firm has ever enjoyed. The "Daylight Store," so called because of its beautiful lighting, presented a striking spectacle with its decorations of palms, potted plants, ferns, vases and jardinières of calla lilies and roses. Pink was the prevailing color scheme against which the lovely spring fabrics and up-to-the-minute millinery were displayed. The obliging clerks; Mrs. Varley, manager of the millinery department, and Miss Kenealley, head designer and trimmer, aided Mr. Beatty in the reception of the throng that crowded the beautiful store. To Mr. Arthur Templeton is due the striking window displays. Music on piano and violin during both afternoon and evening events was furnished by Miss Cozad and Miss Rutter.

In the Dry Goods Section
Here was a magnificent showing of all the season's novelties, including crepe meter silks, silk poplins, the tub silks, cotton crepes and ratines, embroidered flouncings, both in pure white or with dainty colors of blue and pink in the pretty stitches. Of waists and wash dresses and all the ready-made goods that this modern store boasts, there was a stunning display. The splendid lighting of the store displayed fabrics and tints to the greatest advantage.

The Millinery Showing
The lovely spring day, however, most strongly inclined the feminine heart to the ravishing chapeaux that with tango bows and exquisite flowers and lustrous ribbons awaited them in the millinery section. And such creations! The magnificent show windows, in one of which was revealed a "dream in purple" where shadow lace drifted above the lovely purple drapings and striking hats in jets and purples; another in yellow shades blending to green, had roused the curiosity of the visitors to the keenest pitch. It was delightfully satisfying.

One of the lovely creations was a large Shepherdess in cream and yellow, with the new trimmed bandeau on which flowers and wheat were used in the close effect. Gold and black and jets and purple with the tango tint, varying in shades, were seen everywhere. A black Milan bany hat, pancy edged with high side trimming of a dashing butterfly bow, was greatly admired. Another hat in black was of lace and jet with spill trim from which sprang two of the new Numida aligettes. A chic tango bonnet of gold lace for evening wear, bordered with tiny pink rosbuds, had winglike extensions on either side. Still another had a crown of lilies of the valley flanked by the dashing tango bows. But picturesque and dainty hats were seen in such profusion that it is a hopeless task to more than mention a few of the most striking.

Street Chapeaux
In street hats, the sailors in a variety of forms and the high side medium or small hats are the most popular. In trimmings, flowers and ribbons are the rage, ornaments playing a big part. In colors, black is par excellence, while tango in several shades and a French blue ranging from dark to light, are leading colors. All of these tints, trimmings and shapes were seen galore in Saturday's events and for style in creating, combining of materials and artistic treatment the Crookshank-Beatty Company showing of spring hats undoubtedly rivaled that of the city stores.

Grand Opera House

Next Wednesday evening at the Grand Opera House promises to be a notable event, the occasion being the presentation in this city of "The Wolf," the play that set all Chicago talking for more than six months, during its run in that city at the Chicago Opera House, and also held New York spellbound for nearly a year at the Lyric Theater.

"The Wolf" is from the pen of Eugene Walter, author of several dramas, but it is so different from the usual run of plays that it leaves a distinct impression of its own on the mind of the spectator. The story and theme are new. There is an abundance of bright dialogue, droll humor, and the pathos and sentiment of the play are not of the artificial sort. The stage settings are remarkably elaborate and many of the scenes are as well managed as to receive hearty applause. The engagement of "The Wolf" promises to be a record breaker.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

Christian Leadership, "Philip Findeth Nathaniel." Preached in the Church of the Messiah by the Rev. Rufus S. Chase, on assuming the rectorship of the church, October, 1912.

Philip Findeth Nathaniel. Gospel of St. John, 1st chapter, part of the 45th verse.

How simple the phrase and service, and yet contained in these words is so much meaning, so much power, so much human history. In the three words of our text, two of them names, joined by the word "findeth," we have the story, the secret of all the best work since time began; herein is contained the keynote of the highest missionary zeal and service; the very secret of the great leaderships that have changed the world's history and made a new day in human experience. One man findeth another and leads him to his best. It has been truly said that a friend is one who helps us to our best; directly or indirectly the leaderships of men, the influence of others, is one of the most important, if not the most important, factor in human history—what others make us do, make of us, the influence of another's opinion, smile or frown, what others think, how it often enslaves our best powers, our courage, our service to our day and age. By this power, what others think, we dress and live, often far beyond our means, and to our great anxiety, many times to our despair and failure. Men have done great wrongs, been false to their trust, sought to secure influence and place wrongly that they may gain power over others, have the favor, the consideration and praise of others, seeking leadership in human affairs, the bubble "reputation" only to find the cost to the soul too great and what they so eagerly sought not worth the possessing.

How enslaved we are, how little true independence we have, how largely public opinion, how the praise or blame of others influence us; how great the power one life has over another to its disadvantage and loss.

Now, let us leave this disagreeable side of human influence and try to see a higher truth, the other side of the shield.

"Philip findeth Nathaniel." The power for good one life may have over another; how often one life has discovered another to the world's vast good and service; how noble this work is when it is done with high consecration and purpose. The church begins in this way, by one man coming into the fellowship, the truth of Christ for himself, and then finding his brother and filling him with the same great faith and enthusiasm, and such lives passing the light and power on, never decreasing their own life, or power or light by so doing, but always increasing it, we have the key to the most helpful movement in human history. And after all is not this the most real service and meaning of this, this life which we are all living, is not this the greatest work in the world; this finding of one another; this discovery of what a life is best fitted to be and to do and then helping that life to be all that it may be; helping each life to its own best service. As we make the discovery of our own powers and higher resources, not ever making our life selfish, but believing in the latent good in others, go forth awakening them to their native work and capacity. A number of years ago an obscure man is sitting quietly in his study in a little village far away from the busy life of the world of men. A friend comes in. A Philip as it were, a man ordained to open the heart and life of others, he reads the scattered leaves of a manuscript, thrown aside as of little worth, he is surprised at the beauty of expressing the power, the hidden capacity for helpfulness in his friend's life and work, and insists on making him known to the world and thus began a ministry in literature and life that has inspired and helped vast numbers all over the world. Now, he who found this man, the Philip who discovered his friend's power, is little known today, content to be unknown; if only his friend may do God's service in the world. "Philip findeth Nathaniel." One man a century or so ago spoke to another his deep conviction as to the awfulness, the cruelty, the wrong of human slavery and he fired his listener with a desire to serve in the great cause of human freedom and the one thus found whom the word of truth found became a leader in the cause of freedom and the islands of the sea; and thus it is, the service is ever being rendered, often by humble, simple lives who cannot lead themselves, who have not the power, the gift of great leadership, but they discover, they encourage someone who has the voice, who has the power, and the gift to do the work that so greatly needs to be done.

How wonderful, how beautiful, how silent, but far reaching, this service often is. The influence of the mother with her children, thinking how her simple daily task shall best be done; self denying to make her home a life's training school for her children, awakens later in life to find her own a man of character, a leader of men, a friend of God and of his fellow men, perhaps to lead a nation in some great unguessed good, as has often been the experience in our American history. The school teacher who thinks her task small, her own way narrow, her power of influence meager, findeth here and there a Nathaniel on whom he or she may make an impression that shall be a power for good, she may not go outside of her own little narrow circle of influence, but he finally goes forth into all the world. How indeed the world is waiting for the Philips and the Andrews to find the boy, to find the men, those who will do the broader work they themselves cannot do, those who are great in soul enough, large hearted enough, to help others to do and to see others do a work and lead where they may not. This type of simple greatness and service we oft times under value and forget; it is just the power most needed today; it is not conspicuous, it is, indeed, generally forgotten. This ability to get others to do, to live through others, to inspire others to do what we cannot do, to take up the cause, the good work, the truth and carry it on to success, Jesus himself depended on just this service, gradually he gathered about himself his disciples. He found his men, discovered them, revealed them to themselves; they did not know their power before they met Him; He made them the leaders of a noble evangel to the world. He said to them as they beheld His works of power and goodness: "Greater things than these shall ye do." He saw in them, latent, unused, undiscovered, much the same powers He himself possessed and He longed for men to come into their own power. Jesus findeth Peter, James and John and the twelve, and the twelve find a multitude no man may number. How the little has grown great; how the ministry of the One has grown all down through the centuries. Who could have guessed such a result; who would have dared, standing beneath the shadow of the Cross, to predict the influence, the power and service, of that one life so weak and powerless in that sad hour of human history. "Philip findeth Nathaniel."

Augustine is sitting in the great cathedral at Milan under the preaching of Ambrose and the words of the gifted preacher go out on the air as upon wings until they find the young Augustine and reveal to him the worth, the value, the glory of a service of God and his fellow men. The old life is left far behind, and the sainted mother, who first taught him the truth, who begged her son not to go up to the great city rejoices in the leading that came to him there. The door that opened, the divine service that became his from that hour. How manifold the service thus rendered, not confined to the great and gifted, but possible to the simple and inconspicuous; what mother, what teacher, what business man, what friend, thinks at the time of speaking the right word, standing for the right, doing the faithful inconspicuous service, standing always for the best, that this attitude is surely going forth to find someone, some boy, some life, a life faltering maybe, having power, but not knowing it, not knowing how to use their power, some life needing encouragement, needing to be found, needing to be understood by someone, a life when understood to go forth and do the work no other may do for the world.

What is it to find another? The world often asks this question for its own selfish advantage; the world studies this question and gains its power by and through its skill to answer it. The fashion, the pleasure of the passing hour, is evidence of the world's study of what will find men, what the papers, magazines and the every wayside mode with attractive advertisements made a great cost to find men; what notes are thrown out, what bait is used to catch men, and how well it pays, succeeds, otherwise it would not be continued for an hour. Now, in a far higher sense there is a searching for men possible, a finding of them, not a searching for those higher, deeper springs of action and life, the revelation of a man to himself, his power, not his weakness, his greatness not his pettiness, his opportunity, not his danger. "Philip findeth Nathaniel," but not to use him for his own selfish purposes, not to make him his own as he did, not to mould him after his own pattern, or to have Nathaniel put himself in his power; ah, no, "Philip findeth Nathaniel" to lead him to the Christ, in other words, to his best. We are often generous about sharing the second and third rate things we possess, but not the best; we urge others to enjoy the pleasures we care for the material things we have; the world is too reticent, we are too reticent concerning our best; indeed, it is not true that finding our brother, finding others, we all too often lead another into our sins to share our failures, our weaknesses, our prejudices; we think little of leading others into that great discipleship of truth, of good, of unselfish service, the discipleship for which Christ stood among the sons of men.

"Philip findeth Nathaniel." We may believe that the experience related in the text did not end with the setting sun that day; Philip led Nathaniel to Jesus, but we may believe that from that time Philip was Nathaniel's friend, and Nathaniel was ever revealing himself to Philip. Our minds, our souls, are much like uncultivated gardens, and only the wise gardener sees and develops their beauty and value. We often need another life to reveal the latent good and power that is ours to realize. It is said that every human life, however degraded, however seemingly lost in the fog of its sins and failures, has its brother soul in the universe, its Philip as the Gospel says, the soul's Superior, some one finding another, finding us, in truth and deed life ever after is different, we increasingly come to our best; we are led nearer to our Christ.

It is said, and truly said in a great measure, that Arthur Hallam found the poet Tennyson; it is true that Tennyson never wrote his best until Arthur Hallam came into his life, until he found Hallam and then led him, only to find him again and to make his friend immortal in "In Memoriam." We would like to know who found the youth Lincoln and spoke to him that first word of power and inspiration that entered into his soul so that he could not rest until he had spoken the word of freedom to a million slaves and saved the Union of these states that are destined in the hand of the way we believe, to shape the future of this world's history in no small degree. What truth, what inspiration and what high leading led Florence Nightingale to the Crimean War on that errand of divine mercy to the wounded and the dying, the beginning of a movement that has softened the horrors of war ever since. "Philip findeth Nathaniel." We do not hear much in history of Philip or Nathaniel, that is not important; it is not necessary that history make record of our life, far better that the influence of our life should be recorded in the silence of another's experience, there to go on to endless expression. Great indeed is written history, but greater, far greater, the silence of history; great, what we know, vastly greater what has never been revealed or recorded. May we increasingly value the vast, unknown, unwritten service possible to us all, that ministers to us all. Value more the inconspicuous, quiet, helpful life even now with us, no less serviceable than is the poised, the balance of life without many of the faults of conspicuous power. Philip, Nathaniel and Andrew hardly known. Peter and John and Paul, how well known. If we realized how many great men are dependent on little men—so called—we would honor more the silent greatness that often keeps a kingdom sane or makes a republic safe; we would value far more than we do those who keep the home going while public greatness would forget its value to the state. What would be the value of the leader, the poets, the statesmen, our great and inspired teachers, but for the simple, plain, earnest lives that receive the words of truth and daily live out the preaching and the truth often far better than the man of eloquence. One leads, another follows, and he who follows may often be greater in soul, more faithful than he who leads.

"Philip findeth Nathaniel." It is one life finding and helping another two thousand years ago but repeated again and again all down the Christian ages which more nearly expresses your life and mine; I am glad that there were a few lesser members of the Master's company, Peter and John seem far beyond us, but Philip and Nathaniel and Andrew, how near to our own experience; indeed, they are of our own company. Few of us may hope to ascend into the spiritual company of St. Paul or wield such power as St. Peter or St. Paul, but, finding here and there some life, finding ourselves in the life of Christ, then leading another to this Master of life; we repeat the experience of Philip and Nathaniel.

Doubt it not that there is some life, some one life near your life day by day that you may find, in that deepest sense the Gospel of Christ means, some life you may reveal the best it may do; remember our best friend is one who reveals the best in us, one who finds us and helps us to our best, helps us to find ourselves. Some twenty years ago I came out of the far East into the barren West, a desert country east of the Cascade Mountains; at first I could see no beauty and no promise in that desert land. Come, my friend, said, and I will show you what can be done, and following his lead I passed out of the desert and entered into a beautiful garden and then an orchard, and lifting up my eyes saw miles and miles of such cultivation as I had never seen before.

Our minds, our souls, are much like desert lands, where no living water has come, our souls uncultivated seem barren and of little value, indeed, some have never discovered the garden of the soul, but at last the day comes when someone finds us, and the deeper resources of our being are revealed, the hidden life of the soul, the right cross-comes into our hands, a friend crosses our path, Philip findeth Nathaniel, and together they go forth to find the Christ, to see in him the truth of life, the revelation of work, of service, of death and immortality. When the church itself more deeply finds the Christ, when we have truly found Him within ourselves, the very hope of a glorified life, nothing can keep us from finding and leading our brother to Him, and to do so will be the one supreme joy and privilege of life. May we see today the value of this high service to God and man; may there come to us a new consecration of this leadership. "I sanctify myself" that I may henceforth be more worthy to lead and to guide others to that great example and Helper, the Christ.

There is no service so great, so good, so inspiring in all the world. "Wherever upward, even the lowest round, Man, by a hand's help, lifts his feeble brother, There is the House of God, and holy ground. The gate of Heaven is Love, there is none other, When generous act blooms from unselfish thought. The Lord is with us, though we know it not." Prayer—O, Jesus, our Master, do thou meet us while we walk in the way and long to reach thy country, so that following thy light, we may never wander into the darkness of the world's night, while thou art the Way, the Faith and the Life. Amen!

WERDIN LOSES, STARTS ANEW

Writ of Mandate Denied; Next is Review of Paving Proceedings

By denying a writ of mandate, Judge West this morning ruled that under the proceedings then in court he would not compel Street Superintendent English to sign a contract with E. R. Werdin for paving East Fourth street, east of the Santa Fe. Immediately Werdin's attorneys, Crouch & Crouch of Los Angeles and W. M. Brown of Orange, started in to prepare for a writ of review, by which they expect to gain the end they seek.

English was in court in answer to the order for him to show cause why he should not sign Werdin's contract. Attorney Steele Finley and City Attorney Heathman represented English, and contended that since English has already signed a contract for paving the street, the court could not compel him to sign another while the present one is supposedly valid. Judge West took that view of the case. Werdin's attorneys then began preparing a petition for a writ of review, under which proceedings they hope to get a ruling favorable to them.

Werdin's petition for a writ of mandate followed the action of East Fourth street property owners in taking over the paving of the street. Werdin had been awarded the contract by the city under Vrooman Act proceedings, but the property owners took the contract over and let it to W. N. Crandall.

KNOWLAND IS OUT FOR THE U. S. SENATE

Would Succeed George C. Perkins—Knowland Asks California Votes on His Record

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Congressman Joseph R. Knowland of California yesterday announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States senator from that state to succeed Senator George C. Perkins. Congressman Knowland says he will go before the people of California on his record.

"I withheld my announcement," he says, "thinking they might be a movement among Republicans to call some conference for general discussion before the announcement of candidacies for any office, but as such is unlikely, I make my announcement public at this time."

Among Congressman Knowland's notable speeches was one in defense of free Panama Canal tolls and against the repeal of the exemption clause as urged by President Wilson. Other matters for which he has fought are the passage of emergency legislation to aid San Francisco after the fire; securing for California the 1915 exposition; the provision in the canal act preventing transcontinental railroads from operating steamships through the canal.

CHAFIN WILL RUN FOR U. S. SENATOR

Will Make Independent Race—Expects 10,000 Votes from Women of Arizona

TUCSON, Ariz., March 23.—Eugene W. Chafin of this city, who will run for United States senator from Arizona this fall, will make the race on the independent ticket. The prohibition party did not poll enough votes in the last election to get a place on the ticket.

As a result, Chafin will not have to run in the primary, but will get on the ballot by nominating petition. Running for senator will be somewhat of a novelty for him, as he is best known as the prohibition candidate for president.

The national prohibition party is flooding the state with literature in his support.

"I expect 10,000 women votes," says Chafin himself, "and if there are five candidates in the field, I will win."

It is Marcus A. Smith's job that Chafin is after. Others after it are Alfred Franklin, Democrat, chief justice of the state supreme court; Jesse M. Ling, Democratic national committeeman; Joseph H. Kilbey, former territorial governor. Kilbey may be a fusion candidate. If he is not, Dwight B. Heard, Progressive, and Ralph H. Cameron, Republican, will be in the field. There will also be a Socialist candidate.

Chafin is just home from a 75-speech campaign from Imperial, Cal., to San Francisco. He arrived in time to attend the birthday party of his daughter.

"She was born on St. Patrick's Day to get me the Irish vote," says Chafin.

SAYS CONTRACTOR DID NOT LIGHT HIS LIGHTS

Today J. E. Otto swore to a complaint charging W. F. Ducey, a good roads paving contractor, with driving an automobile at night without having the automobile provided with two white lights in front in accordance with the new state motor vehicle law.

Otto stated that last night Ducey was returning from Newport Beach and was driving the machine without proper lights and upon the left side of the street. His automobile collided with another automobile. Otto saw the accident. He was asked by the owner of the machine that was struck by Ducey to go to a telephone and call an officer. That Otto did, and on returning to the place the injured automobilist and his machine were gone. Ducey was still there and was taken in charge by Under Sheriff Law, who had been called by Otto. Ducey gave bail last night. An axle on his automobile was bent.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Advertisement.
